The Collegium Musicum of the University of Pennsylvania presents a concert of 17th century music in honor of the Christian Brothers' Tercentenary.

Christian Brothers' Tercentenary Observed With Concert, Convocation, Solemn Liturgy

The founding of the Christian Brothers by St. John Baptist de La Salle in 1681 was observed with the college's faculty this spring on three occasions.

On Friday evening, March 27, the Collegium Musicum of the University of Pennsylvania presented a concert of seventeenth century music. The concert was complemented by two exhibits, one on the life and work of St. La Salle, the other featuring paintings of ancient instruments by Management Professor Giuseppe M. Ferrero diRoccaferrea. Honored guest for the concert and the wine and cheese reception hosted by the Provost which followed, was Brother Pablo, Superior General of the Brothers.

On Wednesday, April 15, a special faculty meeting heard talks on St. La Salle and the Lasallian tradition by Brothers John D'Alfonso, Daniel Burke, and President Patrick

Ellis. Commemorative medals were distributed to the faculty on the occasion.

The faculty were also invited to attend the solemn liturgy of thanksgiving celebrated by His Eminence John Cardinal Krol on Saturday, April 25, at the Cathedral Basilica of SS. Peter and Paul. Homilist at the Mass was Monsignor Francis Schulte, who had worked with the Brothers in the Philadelphia area in his years as Superintendent of Schools.

A special choral mass with instrumental accompaniment "In Honor of St. John Baptist de La Salle" had been written for the celebration by the noted composer Ron Nelson, chairman of the Music Department of Brown University. The Commission was supported by a gift from Mrs. Margaret Bowman in memory of her late husband Lawrence, for many years an instructor in the Evening Division.

The Philadelphia Boys choir and Men's Chorale premiered the mass under the direction of Robert Hamilton. In recent years, the home-base of this internationally known group has been on the La Salle campus.

La Salle Receives Two of its Largest Grants For Holroyd Hall & Humanities

La Salle College has recently been awarded two of the largest grants in its history which will enable the college to renovate the Roland Holroyd Science Center on its 20th St. and Olney Ave. campus and also expand its Humanities Department.

A $600,000 grant from the Pew Memorial Trust—the largest grant La Salle has ever received from a private foundation—will be used to improve energy conservation in the Science Center, to augment the building's aesthetic quality, and to upgrade the Chemistry and Biology Department laboratories.

The 21-year-old Roland Holroyd Science Center currently houses classrooms, laboratories, lecture rooms, and faculty offices for the college's Geology, Physics, and Psychology Departments in addition to Biology and Chemistry.

La Salle also has been awarded a $420,000 challenge grant from the National Endowment for the Humanities—the largest grant ever received by the college for an academic program or faculty development.

La Salle was among 122 universities, libraries, historical institutions and museums in 35 states and the District of Columbia to receive one of the challenge grants awarded this year.

The grant was awarded contingent upon La Salle College's ability to match the funds at a $3 to $1 ratio over the next 3-1/2 years.

La Salle's President Brother Patrick Ellis, F.S.C., Ph.D., said that the grant will be used for endowed operating and faculty development expenses in the college's Humanities Department as well as for purchasing institutional equipment and library material for the Humanities.

Workshops Conducted:

Bernier, Joseph J., assistant professor, psychology, presented a workshop to parents of potential college students as part of the Annual Career Day Program offered by the Philadelphia Electric Company to their employees and the children of employees on October 25, 1980.

Dr. Vogel, along with Marcia Telthorster, assistant to the vice president for student affairs presented a workshop entitled, "Adventure Training for Resident Assistants," at the National Conference for the Association of College and University Housing Officers, held in Toronto, Canada in August 1980.

The National Endowment For The Humanities Challenge Grant program was established by Congress in 1976 to help non-profit, humanities-oriented institutions generate new financial support. The grants are awarded on a competitive basis. This year, 285 institutions applied to the program.

The Science Center and Humanities Department projects are two of the primary objectives of La Salle's three-year, $15 million "Campaign For The 80's."

La Salle's Holroyd Science Center will be renovated with funds from a $600,000 grant from the Pew Memorial Trust.

Music Theatre Plans "Man of La Mancha"

The La Salle College Music Theatre will introduce a new format this summer by presenting one show for six weeks, a revival MAN OF LA MANCHA, the all-time box office hit at La Salle.

MAN OF LA MANCHA will open in the College Union Theatre, on campus on Wednesday, July 8, and continue five nights weekly from Wednesdays through Sundays until August 16. The original La Salle production of MAN OF LA MANCHA drew 105 per cent of capacity to La Salle's 382 seat theatre in 1970, the highest attendance in the theatre's 19-year-history.

Information on special group rates as well as individual ticket plans can be obtained by calling 951-1410 or by writing to La Salle Music Theatre, Philadelphia, Pa 19141. Tickets are now on sale at the box-office.

Counseling Center Expresses Thanks

The Counseling Center wishes to thank all faculty and staff for their support and cooperative efforts in making the Stress Symposium, "Stress Management: Untying the Knots" possible. The tremendous sense of community throughout the entire symposium was perhaps its finest element.

Approximately 1000 students, faculty, staff, and community members participated in the various symposium workshops. Evaluations of the workshops stressed the excellence, professionalism, effectiveness, and outstanding content of each workshop. In addition, many faculty members requested further programming of a similar nature.

The Counseling Center will attempt to accommodate such requests by offering a variety of workshops which can be incorporated into general course objectives. These workshops could cover such topics as procrastination, test anxiety, communication skills, assertiveness training, and stress management; and can be conducted either directly in the classroom or as an adjunct program. Please contact the Counseling Center for further information.

Two internationally-recognized medical authorities were featured at La Salle College's second annual Holroyd Lecture on April 10 in the College Union Theatre.

Francis J. Braceland, M.D., retired psychiatrist-in-chief at the Institute of Living, in Hartford, Conn., received the Holroyd Award named in honor of Dr. Roland Holroyd, La Salle's distinguished biology professor emeritus.

John T. Potts, Jr., M.D., chief of medical services at Massachusetts General Hospital and an internationally-recognized authority on calcium metabolism and the hormonal mechanisms which control it, delivered the Holroyd Lecture "The Impact of Recombinant DNA Technology on Medicine & Society."

Dr. Braceland, a retired Rear Admiral, served with the U.S. Navy during World War II as special assistant to the Surgeon General and as chief of the Neuro-psychiatry Division. Since then he has held a number of major professional and administrative positions including head of the Section in Psychiatry at the Mayo Clinic.

Dr. Potts has been placed by a recent study among the world's top 12 medical researchers in terms of the frequency with which his studies are cited by other scientists. Since 1975, he has been Professor at Harvard Medical School and Physician at Massachusetts General Hospital.

Both Drs. Braceland and Potts are graduates of La Salle College. The Holroyd Lecture is sponsored by the college's School of Arts and Sciences, Biology Department, and Alumni Medical Society. Potts was introduced by Dr. John T. Magee.

Campaign Support Nears $94,000

Since late August, the College Committee of the Campaign for the 80's has been actively soliciting three-year pledges and contributions from the faculty and staff through a series of mailings and personal contacts.

As of April 15, a total of 129 faculty and staff members have pledged or contributed $93,988 to the Campaign, according to Dr. Fred Foley, Jr., Director of Development. This is an excellent beginning, and has helped the campaign exceed the half-way mark ($7.5 million) less than one year after it publicly began.

All of the members of the College Committee are very grateful to those who have already supported the Campaign for the 80's, and would like to urge those who have not yet done so to make their commitments at their earliest convenience.
